POLICIES

My relationships with my clients are some of my favorite parts of business life.

Please read through this document so we can have the most successful experience.

1. Your initial consultation fee is non-refundable no matter the project outcome.
2. My work reflects my own aesthetic; you are not a co-designer. In addition, I do not copy other people's work. By engaging me you have reviewed my work and you love what I do! I am not a clothes-to-order service; I am a designer.
3. The quote and project cost I will provide you via invoice detail, has a 30-day term.
4. As my work is all custom and unique, the project is subject to any post delays and supplier discrepancies. If you have a hard deadline be sure to let me know before downpayment is made. I will do my best to accommodate deadlines but a deadline guarantee or rush job may incur an additional fee.
5. Your responsibilities are to provide all relevant information I require (such as fabric selection, body measurements, et cetera) within one week of invoice date.
6. You are responsible to adhere to our payment agreement and terms.
7. All project spec details are recorded on the invoice. Please review the invoice fully to make sure all relevant details are to your satisfaction, before making payment. If it's not on the invoice - whether you think we talked about it, DMd about it, or had an extrasensory connection - it's not part of the project.
8. Fittings: garments may require zero fittings up to five fittings, depending on their complexity. Fittings may be done over Zoom or in-person in my studio, at my discretion.

9. Please do not wear the garment then ask for alterations or changes. You must try your garment on upon receipt, then you have two days to communicate, through email, if you'd like to meet to discuss changes. After we meet, any or all of these alterations or changes are at my full discretion. If I agree to these changes, you have seven days after you received the garment to postmark it back to me. In short: this project requires your focus, just like I focus.

10. All of my work may be photographed, blogged, and shared via social media online at any point during the project at my discretion. If you have any need for me to wait to share photographs, please request this during our consultation.

Thank you so much for your support and your patronage. I will treat your project with all the care, finesse, and joy I treat all my work! I appreciate your investment - and I appreciate you.

I look forward to working with you!
